Introduction

Welcome to the Belgian route called 'The East of Belgium'. The route – which covers another 40 kilometers or so – runs from the Walloon capital, Liege, to the city of Verviers.

The route begins in the capital of the province of Liège with the eponymous Liege Guillemins train station; subsequently, the route follows the river Vesder – via the hilly landscape – to Verviers Central.

During the approximately 25 km ride, you will pass several intermediate stations along the route, starting at Angleur, which lies just on the other side of the Meuse. Next, you pass Chenee to Chaudfontaine.

Chaudfontaine is known for its eponymous spring water industry. After Chaudfontaine, you pass through Trooz, Fraipont, and Nessenvaux, where you arrive in Pepinster.

Pepinster – the last station before Verviers – connects with the line from Spa, after which they run together towards the current end point of the route, namely: Verviers Central.

In addition to local and Intercity traffic, this route also offers endless options for cross-border traffic in both the present tense (in the form of the NJ) and the past tense.

Points to note:

- It is recommended to only create/drive scenarios that take place in the summer or autumn; this is because the route largely consists of vegetation (trees, shrubs). This disappears if you drive in the winter or spring. As a result, the route may appear quite empty.

- In Belgium, trains run on the left track.

- The entire route is implemented using TBL, MEMOR, and ETCS.
